Med anledning av den stora årliga klimatkonferensen COP talar Greta Thunberg och introducerar klimataktivister från hela världen som ger vittnesmål om hur klimatkrisen påverkat deras hemländer.

Well, welcome everyone and good morning. Good morning, everyone.

Should we start? Are we ready? So, well, we are all here because we know that the climate crisis is already here and now, and it is already a matter of life and death. And these disastrous trends that we are seeing unfolding all over the world are going to continue to exponentially get worse and worse, and these trends are unfolding worse and faster than predicted. And we have to start acting accordingly. The actions from those in power here are completely detached from reality. As we speak, we are losing priceless lives, ecosystems, and species that we will never get back. And the climate crisis is a crisis of injustice, where those least responsible for this crisis are being hit hardest and fastest. And today, we will hear some more testimonies about how these crises are manifesting already today all over the world and how people are resisting against it.
